A FINE LABOR DAY.

IDEAL WEATHER FOR REST AND PLEASURE.

THOUSANDS GO OUT OF THE CITY ON EXCUR-CIONS OR TO WITNESS SPORTING CONTESTS.

Yesterday was an ideal holiday. The sunshine and bracing air made sport and exercise in the open air enjoyable, and Labor Day has come to be a day of sport and recreation for most New-Yorkers. Workingmen found in past years in recent years they have preferred to have outings and picnics when the weather conditions were favorable. The city was quiet and comfortable yesterday, and many persons who remained in the city spent some pleasant hours riding or walking in the streets and parks. Many thousands took short trips out of the city.

All the elevated trains and cars in the city were well patronized yesterday. Labor Day meant extra service for most of the employes of the railroad companies. Musicians also had extra work. Many organizations of workingmen went to suburban parks and took along bands to furnish music. There were excursions on the water, as well as on the land. Early in the day its city convention yesterday morning in a the streets of the city were filled with people at No. 8 Union Square East and placed a departing on place.

It was a great day for bleycle riders. People of both sexes, old, young and middle-aged, were seen making their way on wheels along the principal avenues toward the outskirts of the city. There were runs into Westchester County, into New-Jersey and to seashore places, and every road had its procession of wheelmen and wheelwomen. There was hardly a minute of the day when a score or more of bicycle riders could not be seen crossing the Brooklyn Bridge. Hundreds of riders crossed the Bridge to Brooklyn to proceed to Coney Island, and there was an enormous procession of Brooklyn riders to

Flags were flying above the public buildings and many other buildings in the city all day.
The banks and exchanges were closed, and business was practically at it standstill, although some of the wholesale houses in the drygoods district were open to allow visiting merchants to buy fall goods. The factories and workshops were deserted, and few trucks were seen in the streets. There appeared to be fewer children in the streets than usual, as so many workingmen took their families out of the city to picnics.

BIG CROWDS VISIT STATEN ISLAND. Labor Day was celebrated on Staten Island in a more general way yesterday than ever before, and more than one hundred thousand people visited the island. The boats, trains and trolley-cars were crowded from early morning until midnight.

A special excursion of Jerseyltes from Plainfield arrived at St. George in the merning over the Central Railroad, and the twenty-two carloads of passengers were conveyed to South Bench on the passengers were conveyed to South Bench on the Rapid Transit trains, where they spent the duy, returning home early in the evening.

The North Shore Fire Department held a parade through the streets on the North Shore in the morning, the last parade of the Department before it becomes a part of the Greater New-York system.

All of the resorts in the interior and on the shore were crowded. The United Labor Oreanizations of Staten Island held an outing at Midhard Park, Grant City.

THE CENTRAL FEDERATION'S FESTIVAL. The Labor Day festival of the Central Labor Federation, comprising twenty-seven unions, was | No. held in the Schützen Park, One-hundred-and-seventieth-st, and Boston-ave, yesterday. The attendance was large. The afternoon was devoted to a pro-gramme of games and athletic sports and the even-ing to music and dances. Some informal speeches were made, and discussions on labor topics took place among the labor men present.
